Learn more about...

“Loop”, refers to one circuit around the golf course, 18 holes. It is most commonly used by club caddies to refer to the number of times they worked in a given day.

The MyLoopCard™ is not your average everyday golf scorecard. Today you will enjoy an extensive yardage book and scorecard with an added twist. You will be able to document a variety of basic stats that will help determine what part of your game needs improvement.

The MyLoopTracker system allows golfers to track their Driving Distance, Fairways Hit, Greens-In-Regulation(GIR), Putts, Sand Saves and Up & Downs on the scorecard for further examination after the “loop”.

Take the MyLoopCard™ home and go to www.mylooptracker.com for an in-depth look at your game. Information gathered during today’s “loop” can be tabulated to find where improvement can be made. Track your handicap and golf game from round to round and season to season.

Stay right of the bunker and let your drive run downhill. As you approach the green, stay clear of the deep bunkers on the right.

Favor the right side of the green as your ball will tend to kick off of the slope. The deep bunkers left of the green make saves difficult.

Aim left of the bunkers as the contour of the fairway will bring the ball back toward the center. If you're confident on your second shot, you can go for the green which is open in the front. Otherwise you can aim toward the right side of the large fairway bunker to set up for a short iron into the green.

Favor the right side on your drive to avoid the left fairway bunker; the right bunker is rarely reachable. The green has a higher plateau on the back right corner, so aim accordingly.

The key to your tee shot is to drive left; the steep slope will kick the ball back into the fairway. The green slopes upward right to left, so take enough club and target the left side of the green. Anticipate a bounce to the right when the ball lands on the green.

The safe play for par is to lay up with an iron on this short, tightly bunkered hole. But if you are driving well, a good tee shot can reach the green, which is open in front. The right side of the green is elevated.

7 Par 5
Hcp 1/Hcp 1
● 590 ● 567
○ 544 ● 518

This is the most difficult hole on the course as it is long and tightly bunkered. On your drive, aim left of the first two bunkers unless you're feeling really confident. If you carry the third bunker on your second shot, it will leave you with a short to mid-iron shot to an undulating green.

8 Par 3
Hcp 13/Hcp 17
● 216 ● 188
○ 154 ● 107

The views from this hole are probably one of the most distracting "visual" hazards on the course, but don't let that take your mind off your game. Check the wind and be sure to take enough club to carry the front bunkers. The large green slopes upward from front to back, so take an extra club to reach it.

9 Par 4
Hcp 7/Hcp 11
● 353 ● 333
○ 310 ● 291 /166

Choose your club carefully off the tee in order to set up a short iron second shot to the shallow green. The green is tiered right and left, and accuracy is everything.

A tee shot anywhere on the fairway is okay except for the parade of bunkers on the left and severe slope on the right. Remember to take an extra club on your uphill second shot to a large green, which is guarded by two bunkers on the front right.

Tee shots hold well on this saucers-shaped green. Just be sure to hit the green, because bunkers surround it on all sides.

This is the longest par 4 on the course but not an especially tricky one. A good drive will still leave a fairway wood or long iron to the green. On your second shot, favor the left side of the green to avoid the bunkers on the right.

The green slopes from back to front on this par 3. Take note of the wind, which is usually against you. You may need to take an extra club.

The bunker front right can be carried easily by a good drive on this short par 4. To avoid trouble, favor the left side as the fairway will tend to feed the ball to the right. The front of the green is well protected by bunkers. A high approach shot will have a better chance of holding the green.

A good solid drive anywhere in the fairway will set you up for a downhill approach to the green. Club selection is critical on the second shot. Be sure to gauge the wind and elevation. If you can't loft it, an option is to thread the ball through the front two bunkers. Before hitting your final approach shot, however, be sure to take a moment to enjoy the views from this final hole. Aloha!
